MORENO FAMILY HISTORY

The Moreno family began their journey in cattle ranching in Camaguey, Cuba in 1819. Three generations of cattlemen and women rose from this Cuban paradise, building an operation of 44,000 acres to encompass cattle, sugar cane, and tobacco plantations. Despite flourishing in Cuba, harsh political and extreme conditions kept the family from expanding their estate.

The Moreno family had always respected and admired the American agriculture industry. Inspired by the American Dream and the opportunities they knew would result from their values of discipline, ambition, and hard work, they set their eyes and hearts on the United States.

In 1992, the family moved their enterprise to Florida. With a vast American cattle ranching network, success, and opportunity within reach, the fourth generation of cattle ranchers found a perfect fit and new home for the family enterprises.

When opportunity came knocking in 2017, the Moreno family did what they do best by following heart and instinct to the great state of Texas. Three years later, in the countryside of Riesel, just outside of Waco, the next chapter of Moreno Ranches unfolded as it became the new home to the Moreno's Brahman cattle headquarters.

Much has changed since Old Cuba for the Moreno family. Today, the Moreno family has a grand vision for the future of the American Brahman cattle industry that stems from the basic work ethic, traditions, and disciplines of their first Spanish generations.
